Mayor McCoy Reminds Families-In-Need that the HVCC Food Pantry is Open Today

Vernon, Conn., -- Mayor McCoy issued the following statement reminding residents that the Hockanum Valley Community Council's Food Pantry will be open today:

"While schools are closed today, I would like to remind families-in-need that the HVCC's Food Pantry, located on Naek Road, will be open. Families can use the Connecticut Transit Z-Bus (Bus 84), which drops off and picks up on the corner of Talcottville and Naek Road."

"I would also like to ask that neighbors lend a helping-hand to other neighbors-in-need. Given the amount of snow accumulated from yesterday's storm, many members of the community need help clearing driveways and sidewalks. If you have a snow blower, help your neighbor who does not. We need to clean the sidewalks so that children can get to school tomorrow and to help ensure public safety. Remember, there is a lot of snow, so take it slow; we want to prevent heart attacks and other types of injuries. I would like to thank the public for their continued patience, understanding and help during and after the storm."
